Global provides energy marketing and consulting services to producers and end users, which include natural gas, natural gas liquids, crude oil, sulphur and electricity expertise. Our personnel also specialize in energy commodity hedging advice, energy price risk management, and market portfolio strategy and development.

Capitalizing on Global's expertise, we focus on providing a full service marketing department for junior and intermediate producers. We optimize netback value through direct sales (to spot and short-term markets) and assist producers by marketing their oil and gas production in kind. In-house administrative and marketing personnel handle transportation arrangements, contract administration, implement economically strategic sales portfolios, provide joint venture and contract administration for processing and gathering. Additionally, we can provide due diligence on acquisition and divestiture opportunities. Our client base consists of small to mid size producers, end-users, and financial advisors.
